FEE is the leader in inspiring high school and college students in their classrooms and online with sound economics, ethical principles and personal leadership to become tomorrow's leaders, voters, educators, entrepreneurs, and parents to build a society founded on free-market principles.

A Letter from FEE's President

I want to thank you for your support to FEE in 2022. All of our achievements and successes are a result of your support of FEE. I am proud to report that 2022 was the most impactful year in recent history on all fronts: FEE lectures in high schools, teacher training, and talking to millions of young people online.

More people watch our videos, read our articles, go to our student lectures, and participate in teacher training. We talk to a large and growing audience, and every new brain we engage brings us closer to victory.

These are the reasons for our success.

FIRST, young people are our target, our mission, and our main job. Between 50 of us working full time for FEE we run 26 social media accounts, 2 Youtube channels, 2 podcasts, and countless articles – all aimed at the hearts and minds of 16-22 year olds.

SECOND, we intentionally target people who are not on our side. We do not preach to the choir. The thousands of students who fill our lecture halls have not even heard about our ideas. Some students are on the left, many do not care, but we make them listen and we make them think. As our surveys show, a FEE seminar is the first time students hear about why government power needs to be limited for individuals to be empowered.

THIRD, our brand rises above partisanship, politics, and petty squabbles on Twitter. We possess high quality content, uncompromising ideals, and real experience. Even though we lectured 60,000 students and trained 2000 teachers – many in public schools – never once did we get cancelled or shouted down. Instead, schools invite us back and recommend us to other schools. Many teachers came to us to confess that even though they were on the center-left of the political spectrum the FEE message “made sense.” Many said they will use our materials in their classrooms.

We are smart on strategy, laser-focused on mission, and business-like on operations. As a result we doubled our outputs in 2022 without blowing out our budget, and 2023 is going even better. This report is a short summary of what we did with the resources you entrusted us with.

Thank you again for your support, and I hope you feel proud of what we all accomplished together.

Cultivating Liberty for Generations to Come

The older you get, I've been advised, the more you need to keep a fire extinguisher close to the cake. This is the year I turn 70 but I'm happy to say I'm as productive as I was at half my age—at least in terms of writing and speaking.

I may be an old-timer but as FEE's President Emeritus as well as its Humphreys Family Senior Fellow and Ron Manners Global Ambassador for Liberty, I'm still effectively a full-timer too. In the past year, I authored more articles (more than 60) for FEE.org than in any year since my first one FEE published way back in 1977. And since our last Annual Report, I've lectured dozens of times in person and via Zoom—to audiences from Billings, Montana to Belo Horizonte, Brazil.

As I've watched FEE evolve and grow, one of the most impressive developments I've proudly watched is the organization's reach.

Information provided in this report demonstrates the huge bang we get for our donors' bucks. Just as I'm setting my own records for articles and speeches, FEE broke many of its own records this past year—especially those that measure the numbers of students with whom we interact. My successor as President, Zilvinas Silenas, joins the FEE staff (including me) in extending heartfelt gratitude to our supporters for making our work and progress possible.

Leonard Read was living proof of his own “candle contagion” theory of social change. His intellectual benefactor Edward Mullendore could not have known what momentous results would ripple from his decision to patiently and generously share his truth with the fellow who came to lecture him about the New Deal. Yet, even in 1933, when the authoritarian darkness was overspreading the earth, Mullendore made the hope-affirming choice to share the light of liberty with the younger man before him, who, as a result, was able to find and light his own candle. And since that younger man happened to be Leonard Read—an incredible cross between an entrepreneur and a sage—he went on to help millions more to do the same. The whole world became brighter as a result.

We invite you to join Leonard Read’s legacy by including FEE in your estate plans through a bequest or planned gift.
